Fund Overview

The Covered Bridge Fund was created with the goal of reducing risk during equity market volatility and extending income opportunities for investors.

Fund Objective

The fund seeks current income and realized gains from writing options with capital appreciation as a secondary objective.

- Dividend paying stocks which we believe are high quality.
- Call options sold on existing positions.
- Index put options purchased in extreme cases with the goal of protecting the principle of the fund.

Fund Method

Seek to provide above average equity income generated from dividend paying large cap value stocks and premium collected from writing covered calls.

We believe writing covered calls on approximately half of each position could provide reduced risk to a portfolio by showing lower volatility over the long term. Leaving approximately half of each individual position uncovered can allow for growth.

Distribution Rate	7.32%	7.32%	11.55%	6.60%	4.70%	7.60%	8.46%	8.73%	9.05%

Starting in 2018, the fund transitioned from distributing capital gains annually to distributing capital gains on a quarterly basis.

The SEC yield measures the income in the last 30 days of each calendar year annualized and divided by the net asset value (NAV) at the end of the period. The SEC Yield Unsubsidized does not take into account the fee waivers or expense reimbursement.

The Distribution Rate is calculated by taking the sum of all cash distributions over the 12 month calendar year and dividing by the month end NAV of each calendar year. Distributions may include interest from fixed income, dividends from equities, short term and long term capital gains, return of capital, and special distributions. Return of capital distribution may include a return of some or all of the money that an investor invested in Fund shares. Distributions from securities such as Master Limited Partnerships (MLPs) passing through the fund may also be characterized as return of capital. Special distributions may include any off-cycle distributions that occur outside of regular interest or dividend payment dates, such as when a company opts to pay a special dividend. The amounts and sources of distribution are not provided for tax reporting purposes. The Fund reports the character of distributions for federal income tax purposes each calendar year on Form 1099-DIV. Distributions will fluctuate over time and a large proportion of the distribution may occur at the end of the year in the form of capital gains. Distributions and market value movements affect the NAV of the fund and will also affect this calculation. 12 month distribution rate numbers are based on historical distributions and NAVs and are not predictive of future distributions or yields. 12 month distribution rate is calculated to provide a sense of the total cash flow associated with investment in the Fund, but should not be confused with SEC yield, dividend yield or interest yield.

Important Fund Risk Information: Investments in foreign securities could subject the Fund to greater risks including, currency fluctuation, economic conditions, and different governmental and accounting standards. Higher portfolio turnover will result in higher transactional and brokerage costs. Selling covered call options will limit the Fund's gain, if any, on its underlying securities. The Fund continues to bear the risk of a decline in the value of its underlying stocks. Option premiums are treated as short-term capital gains and when distributed to shareholders, are usually taxable as ordinary income, which may have a higher tax rate than long-term capital gains for shareholders holding Fund shares in a taxable account.

Important Definitions: Call Option: An agreement that gives an investor the right (but not the obligation) to buy a stock, bond, commodity or other instrument at a specified price within a specific time period. Call options involve risks different from, or possibly greater than, the risks associated with investing directly in securities and other traditional investments. These risks include risk of mispricing or improper valuation and the risk that changes in the value of the call option may not correlate perfectly with the underlying asset, rate or index. Put Options: An option contract giving the owner the right, but not the obligation, to sell a specified amount of an underlying security at a specified price within a specified time. This is the opposite of a call option, which gives the holder the right to buy shares. The risk of writing uncovered put options is substantial. The writer of an uncovered put option bears a risk of loss if the value of the underlying instrument declines below the exercise price. Such loss could be substantial if there is a significant decline in the value of the underlying instrument. Index: The Russell 1000 Index; a subset of the Russell 3000 Index, represents the 1000 top companies by market capitalization in the United States. The BXM: tracks the performance of a hypothetical covered call strategy on the S&P 500 Index. The S&P 500 Index: is an unmanaged composite of 500 large capitalization companies. This index is widely used by professional investors as a performance benchmark for large-cap stocks. The referenced indices are shown for general market comparisons and are not meant to represent the Fund. Fundamental Analysis: A method of evaluating a security that entails attempting to measure its intrinsic value by examining related economic, financial and other qualitative and quantitative factors. Covered Call: An options strategy whereby an investor holds a long position in an asset and writes (sells) call options on that same asset in an attempt to generate increased income from the asset. This is often employed when an investor has a short-term neutral view on the asset and for this reason holds the asset long and simultaneously has a short position via the option to generate income from the option premium. Option Premium: The income received by an investor who sells or "writes" an option contract to another party.

Important Risk Information: Mutual funds involve risk including the possible loss of principal.
